

Name: _____

Date: _____

SUBJECT, PREDICATE, & COMPLEMENT: IDENTIFYING D.O. & I.O.

Grammar Review #2

Directions: In the sentences below, first bracket off all prepositional phrases. Then, label the simple predicate [P] and the simple subject [S]. After, put a box around the direct object (if there is one) and put a circle around the indirect object (if there is one).

REMEMBER: THE DIRECT OBJECT AND INDIRECT OBJECT CAN NEVER, EVER, EVER BE IN A PREPOSITIONAL PHRASE.

1. Bertha bought her boyfriend a bug zapper for his birthday.
2. Professor Englebert gives fascinating lectures on Monet, ballet, and tooth decay.
3. Fillmore invented a solar-powered ketchup and jelly packet.
4. For the Homecoming Dance, Carlos gave Darcia a lovely parsley corsage.
5. For an inexpensive decorative touch, Fruitsy licks and sticks Gummy Bears on her sweaters and pets.
6. Unger gave himself a pat on the back and injured a lung.

Name: _____

Date: _____

SUBJECT, PREDICATE, & COMPLEMENT: IDENTIFYING D.O. & I.O.

Grammar Review #2

Directions: In the sentences below, first bracket off all prepositional phrases. Then, label the simple predicate [P] and the simple subject [S]. After, put a box around the direct object (if there is one) and put a circle around the indirect object (if there is one).

REMEMBER: THE DIRECT OBJECT AND INDIRECT OBJECT CAN NEVER, EVER, EVER BE IN A PREPOSITIONAL PHRASE.

1. Bertha bought her boyfriend a bug zapper for his birthday.
2. Professor Englebert gives fascinating lectures on Monet, ballet, and tooth decay.
3. Fillmore invented a solar-powered ketchup and jelly packet.
4. For the Homecoming Dance, Carlos gave Darcia a lovely parsley corsage.
5. For an inexpensive decorative touch, Fruitsy licks and sticks Gummy Bears on her sweaters and pets.
6. Unger gave himself a pat on the back and injured a lung.