

Name: _____

Date: _____

RESEARCH PROJECT: RESEARCH PAPER – LAW / POLICY / HISTORY GUIDELINES

Writing Workshop #2

For this section of your research paper, you will individually research, record notes for, and write a research paragraph about a law, policy, or historical court case regarding your topic of discrimination/inequality.

To start this section, begin by researching what laws are there that protect against discrimination in regards to your topic. You may find that certain amendments ensure a particular freedom. Or, there may be a law that protects against a certain form of inequality in the work place. Or, there may be a historical Supreme Court decision that resulted in a new policy. There are PLENTY of laws, policies, and historical examples.

I highly recommend starting with a basic search (maybe even Wikipedia) -- NOT as a final source for your research, but as a way to gain knowledge about WHAT you should be researching.

YOU AND YOUR GROUP MEMBERS ALL NEED A DIFFERENT LAW, POLICY, OR HISTORICAL EXAMPLE.

You should apply the research strategies discussed and practiced with Ms. Parks. Your source must be a RELIABLE source (research database, newspaper articles, .org and .edu, etc.). For this section, you will be required to provide a citation of the resource you used and add it to the “Works Cited” page.

Once you find your article, you will record CORNELL NOTES for your article. This component will be included in the overall assessment of this section. You must follow the Cornell Notes structure, and the summary section of your Cornell Notes will serve as the first draft of your research summary. We will peer revise and peer edit these summaries next class period.

Name: _____

Date: _____

RESEARCH PROJECT: RESEARCH PAPER – LAW / POLICY / HISTORY GUIDELINES

Writing Workshop #2

For this section of your research paper, you will individually research, record notes for, and write a research paragraph about a law, policy, or historical court case regarding your topic of discrimination/inequality.

To start this section, begin by researching what laws are there that protect against discrimination in regards to your topic. You may find that certain amendments ensure a particular freedom. Or, there may be a law that protects against a certain form of inequality in the work place. Or, there may be a historical Supreme Court decision that resulted in a new policy. There are PLENTY of laws, policies, and historical examples.

I highly recommend starting with a basic search (maybe even Wikipedia) -- NOT as a final source for your research, but as a way to gain knowledge about WHAT you should be researching.

YOU AND YOUR GROUP MEMBERS ALL NEED A DIFFERENT LAW, POLICY, OR HISTORICAL EXAMPLE.

You should apply the research strategies discussed and practiced with Ms. Parks. Your source must be a RELIABLE source (research database, newspaper articles, .org and .edu, etc.). For this section, you will be required to provide a citation of the resource you used and add it to the “Works Cited” page.

Once you find your article, you will record CORNELL NOTES for your article. This component will be included in the overall assessment of this section. You must follow the Cornell Notes structure, and the summary section of your Cornell Notes will serve as the first draft of your research summary. We will peer revise and peer edit these summaries next class period.